Rolling Hills Community Church has been working with The Team House since we began planning our first church mission trip to South Africa in the fall of 2006. To say that working with The Team House is a highlight of our experience is a severe understatement. Here's why:

- The Team House staff understands their role as a ministry partner for mission teams like ours. This "intangible" quality makes all the difference in the world in planning a mission trip.
- The staff is professional, kind, courteous, and goes above and beyond in all aspects of their work. Even for Type A personalities like mine, I never have to worry about what is coming next or how a day is to be executed. The staff does a great job of thinking for us and allowing us to single-mindedly focus on what is most important.
- The facilities are incredibly comfortable and affordable; the setting and service is unmatched; the food is very team-friendly, delicious, and thoughtful; the logistical planning is thoroughly considered.
- Our experience in mission settings is that when one loves a country and gets to experience aspects of it beyond the actual mission setting, they love what they're doing even more. The Team House is able to help plan affordable and meaningful excursions to enhance a team experience in all the right ways, rounding out a trip to a foreign land.
- They really are experts. I have never asked a cultural, missional, logistical, or even a cuisine question that was not answered quickly and accurately. In being professional, though, they also make room in their hearts and lives to befriend our teams in the time we're there. We look forward to seeing The Team House people as much as we do the people we are coming to minister to each year!

The Team House is an unmatched resource in mission trip planning and execution. Any anxiety I experienced about serving in Africa was quickly alleviated upon my first communiqué with The Team House because they really do take care of everything. The relationship we've built in the last five years has only continued to grow and improve, and we're looking forward to many, many more.

Blessings to you!
